++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Patchy rain clearing this evening, then much brighter tomorrow.

This Evening and Tonight:
Patchy rain clearing south this evening, with clearing skies overnight and just a few isolated showers in the north. A brisk breeze developing around northern and western coasts keeping temperatures up here, but turning chilly in sheltered inland areas. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Wednesday:
Feeling a little cooler than recent days on Wednesday, but it will be a generally dry and bright day with sunny spells and perhaps just a fleeting light shower. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Mild and largely cloudy with the cloud thick enough to give the odd drizzly outbreak at times over the hills. Some bright or sunny intervals are possible in places. Breezy.
